

When this button is pressed, the app opens the authorization popup, assigned in the script. The next task for a module developer is to display a user's status (Authorized or not). There is a system variable to solve this task.