

The state of a button is considered active, when the action received feedback and is short or instant (e.g. «Play» in a media player) or an action that is active for a long time and demands another activity to switch off the active state (e.g. «Repeat» in a media player).