Devision into types is necessary for the module correct work on the server. Only logics and the driver part work on the server, but the server knows nothing about the graphic part. That's why a module developer has to devide scripts into types. The server does not notice files for working with the graphic part.