

The output parameter of the method is an array or an object saved in previous sessions.

- To set up data about the subdevice (cache saving).

This method is used to download the data container which you can use for saving on the device. It is an array or an object. To send data to the subdevice, use the following method: