Dynamic module - a module with dynamic functionality (it can be expanded at launch or during work). Such modules are considered more complicated in development, but they are more flexible.