

A module must contain as many subdevices as there are working zones, supported by a device.