Not all internet providers can give you the static IP-address. But if the provider does use a provider's instruction to setup the router to work with static IP-address.