

iridium server connects to a hardware and send commands from a control panel to it. The control panels connect to the server to control the hardware through it, receive feedback, upload logs and database.