Now the application knows that the created subwave is a device for controlling the light (constants for all existing types are in the second tab tables types) .